

Whatever it takes!

Bargaining information for OPSEU-HPD members

It's the hospital calling

We're sick of being called into work repeatedly in the middle of the night.

It's not good for us – and it's just terrible for patient care – to wake someone up out of a deep sleep, after a full day's work, to return to perform critical tasks.

Our call back premium is inadequate and substandard, allowing employers to call us in whenever they feel like it, rather than scheduling a regular shift.

We're only asking for the same call back premium and the same provisions - minimum four hours - as other hospital unions have in their contracts.

Do the OHA and the hospitals have a problem with that?

If they're going to call us in the middle of the night, they better be prepared to listen to what we have to say.

Support the bargaining team. Give your team the commitment that you will do whatever it takes to get a great contract now!
