Student workers to picket four provincial parks

Student workers at four popular provincial parks will stop cars this civic holiday weekend to tell park users that the provincial government is denying vacation and holiday pay to its thousands of student employees, an abuse of the government's own labour laws, the union representing the students announced Thursday in a press release.

Students at Algonquin, Pinery, Wheatley and Sibbald Point Provincial Parks will stage the information pickets. Students, who received vacation and holiday pay in the past from the government, signed contracts earlier this year that promised them this pay, the union says in the press release.

"We hope the government gets the message loud and clear this weekend: honour your own labour laws and pay the students what they rightfully deserve," said OPSEU President Warren Thomas.

OPSEU represents the 3,400 high school, college and university students who work for the Ontario government in the summer.
