Finding your way around your union

A message to current, new and prospective members of the Ontario Public Service Employees Union

Dear sisters and brothers:

It gives me great pleasure to introduce this guidebook.

Those of us who have been around OPSEU for a while sometimes forget how much we had to learn when we first got involved in the union. Like any big organization, we have our own way of doing things, our own structures, and our own vocabulary. The whole thing can seem a bit complicated at first.

This book is designed to help you find your way around OPSEU. It explains how you can get involved at the local level. It shows how the sectors and regions of the union support the work of our locals. And it explains how you can get help on workplace issues from our skilled staff and our elected Executive Board Members.

Life at work is constantly changing. Over the years, OPSEU structures and procedures have evolved constantly to help us adapt to changes as they happen. But no matter how much we change, two things do not change: 1) our desire to make our union stronger so it can do more for our members and our communities, and 2) our desire to shape our own destiny by following democratic principles. When you are a member of OPSEU, you and your co-workers are in the driver's seat.

This user's manual can help get you where you want to go. I look forward to working with you.

In solidarity,

Warren (Smokey) Thomas
President, Ontario Public Service Employees Union

Warren (Smokey) Thomas

Our union and how we work together

With some 125,000 members in Ontario, the Ontario Public Service Employees Union has the resources to offer:

The OPSEU model balances local autonomy with strong regional and central coordination

- 19 fully-staffed regional offices;
- a staff of more than 300 people, including specialists in bargaining, grievance-handling, pensions, benefits, health and safety, human rights, communications, education, and more;
- office space and equipment for OPSEU locals at all regional offices and at 13 stand-alone membership centres;
- meeting space for provincial committees and other member groups at OPSEU Head Office at 100 Lesmill Rd. in Toronto and at 5757 Coopers Ave. in Mississauga;
- tons of experience in mobilizing union members to get what they need; and
- a strong voice at local labour councils and in larger labour bodies.

To pay for all of this, OPSEU members pay union dues at the rate of 1.375 per cent of gross pay. Total dues revenue for the union is approximately $87 million per year. Of this, five per cent goes directly into the strike fund. The strike fund currently has a very healthy balance of $41 million to support OPSEU members who are fighting to improve and defend their collective agreements.

Getting involved in your union

Getting involved in your union means, first of all, getting involved in your local. OPSEU locals hold the keys to power in our union's democratic structures.

OPSEU divisions and sectors help locals with issues in common to coordinate their activities right across the province. OPSEU regions support locals by geographic area, and give locals influence and access at the Executive Board.

The OPSEU model balances local autonomy with strong regional and central coordination.

The front door: OPSEU locals

The purpose of establishing Locals of the Union is to encourage participation of all Members in their Union.

— from the OPSEU Constitution

For OPSEU members, locals are the front door into the life of the union.

Chartered by the Executive Board, locals have the autonomy and the resources to do whatever they think is important for their members. Under the OPSEU constitution and policy, OPSEU locals (and, where applicable, bargaining units within locals) may:

- take part in the negotiation of collective agreements;
- process grievances;
- establish joint labour-management committees on local or unit working conditions;
- spend their own money;
- join local labour councils and other organizations;
- take part in social and community activities;
- elect delegates to the OPSEU Convention, union training, and other important meetings; and
- help craft union policy.

Chartered by the Executive Board, locals have the autonomy and the resources to do whatever they think is important for their members

Types of locals

OPSEU groups locals into three main types:

- In single-unit locals, all members work for the same employer at the same location.
- In multi-unit locals, all members work for the same employer but at different locations.
- In composite locals, members work for more than one employer at one or more locations.

OPSEU local structures

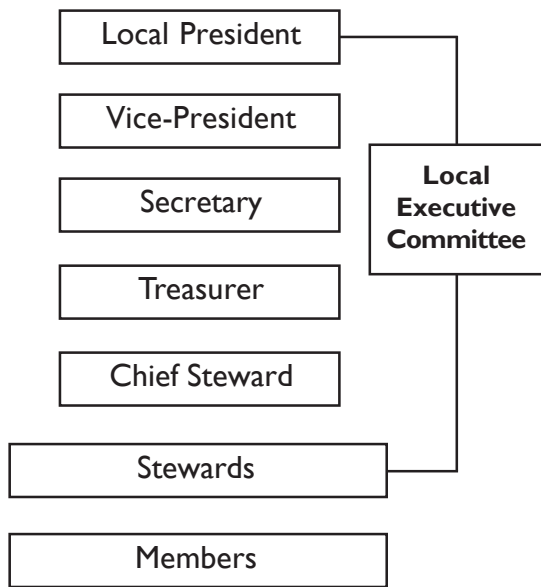

Definitions:

Single-unit local = one unit and one employer

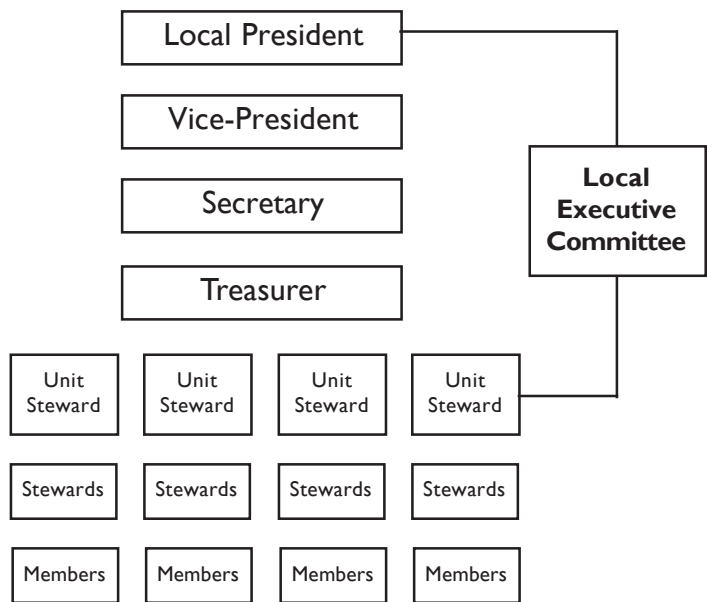

Multi-unit local = more than one unit and one employer

Composite local = more than one unit and more than one employer

Single-unit local

Multi-unit or Composite local

Local elections

Shop stewards are the front-line voice of the union in the workplace. Each local or (in multi-unit or composite locals) each unit decides how many shop stewards it needs. Each shop steward must be elected by a clear majority of members in his or her area.

Members must be shop stewards to be elected to their Local Executive Committee (LEC). Each LEC has a president and at least two other officers (vice-president, secretary, treasurer, secretary-treasurer, chief steward, etc.).

In single-unit locals, all shop stewards are automatic members of the LEC. In multi-unit or composite locals, members in each unit elect one or more unit stewards (from among the shop stewards) to the LEC.

Local elections take place at well-publicized membership meetings. In special cases, the provincial president of OPSEU may authorize polling stations at different locations.

Local funding

OPSEU locals are funded by a quarterly dues rebate system. Locals receive a rebate cheque each January, April, July and October. As of July 2009, OPSEU Accounting pays each local according to the following formula:

- For the first 50 members, the local gets $29.09 per member.
- For each member above 50, the local gets $12.93 per member.

No local gets less than $549.43 per quarter. Composite locals receive an extra annual allowance of $161.60 (for locals with up to 50 members) or $323.20 (for locals with more than 50 members).

Rebate levels are revised each year based on the union's overall revenues.

A typical OPSEU local with 250 members would receive $16,160 a year in operating funds.

Convention delegate entitlements

The OPSEU Convention is the supreme governing body of the union. Held once a year in April, Convention debates and decides on constitutional changes, policy matters, and the annual budget. Convention delegates have very important responsibilities. Electing these delegates is one of the most important things OPSEU locals do.

Locals elect delegates to OPSEU Convention, and many other key meetings, according to the following formula:

- Up to 150 members: 1 delegate
- 151 to 300 members: 2 delegates
- 301 to 500 members: 3 delegates
- 501 to 800 members: 4 delegates
- 801 to 1,100 members: 5 delegates
- 1,101 to 1,500 members: 6 delegates
- 1,501 to 1,900 members: 7 delegates
- 1,901 to 2,300 members: 8 delegates
- 2,301 or more members: 9 delegates

Delegate entitlements are based on signed-up members, not the total number of employees in the local.

A typical OPSEU local with 250 members would receive $16,160 a year in operating funds

Convention delegate entitlements are based on signed-up members, not the total number of employees in the local

Local bylaws

OPSEU locals may pass their own bylaws as long as they do not violate the OPSEU constitution and are approved by the president of OPSEU. Locals that do not pass bylaws are governed by the bylaws in Article 29 of the constitution.

Local numbering

The OPSEU Executive Board assigns local numbers. The first digit in the local number indicates what region the local is in.

Province-wide coordination: OPSEU's sectors and divisions

Union action is united action. No matter where they work, union members become stronger when they take action together.

What's a sector? What's a division?

OPSEU's sectors and divisions (the two words mean the same thing) have one purpose: to unite members from across the province who have workplace issues in common.

In some sectors, like the Ontario Public Service, all members work for the same employer. The same is true for the Property Assessment Division, the Liquor Board Employees Division, and the two community college divisions (Academic and Support). In some sectors and divisions, members work for different employers that provide the same or similar services. The Children's Aid sector, with 21 different employers providing child protection services, is a typical example.

The work of sectors and divisions

Like OPSEU locals, OPSEU sectors and divisions have bylaws that set out the rules under which they work, including the way in which sector leaders and committees are elected. The number one job of divisions and sectors is to coordinate the activities of their members. Divisions and sectors may:

- plan pre-bargaining conferences to help members prepare for demand-setting;
- decide on common bargaining issues;
- organize a province-wide strike vote;
- campaign around a public policy issue, e.g., the need to rebuild public services, or to stop privatization; or
- develop an organizing policy to bring union rights to more workers.

These are examples only. There are really very few limits on the activities divisions and sectors can get involved in.

There are really very few limits on what activities divisions and sectors can get involved in

Budget matters

Budgets for OPSEU divisions and sectors vary widely depending on their activities. All divisions prepare a budget detailing all expenditures they have planned. The OPSEU Executive Board and Convention then allocate funds through the annual budget process.

Some divisions and sectors also collect their own dues that are paid for out of local rebates. This money is used to supplement central funding to send members to conferences, fund scholarships, make donations, and cover other small expenses.

Divisional Councils

In two areas of OPSEU, several divisions and sectors are grouped together to work as Divisional Councils.

The Health Care Divisional Council provides an umbrella for OPSEU's seven health care divisions: Ambulance, Community Health Care Professionals, Health Care Support, Hospital Professionals, Long Term Care Facilities, Mental Health, and Canadian Blood Services & Diagnostics.

The Community Services Divisional Council is the umbrella organization for OPSEU members working in Developmental Services, Children's Aid, Children's Treatment, and (youth) Correctional Centres.

The purpose of the Divisional Councils is to work on issues that go beyond the concerns of individual sectors. The work of the councils includes:

- coordinating the activities of member divisions;
- developing recommendations on policy matters that affect members in more than one division;
- monitoring trends and issues that affect division members;
- working closely with staff; and
- developing recommendations and motions for presentation to the OPSEU Executive Board.

Communication is key to the work of the Divisional Councils. The Health Care Divisional Council publishes a bi-weekly newsletter, Dialogue, that is e-mailed to OPSEU members working in health care and posted to the OPSEU web site.

OPSEU's regions: Making locals stronger together

Executive Board Members give locals a direct link to the Executive Board, the union's most important decision-making body other than Convention

The seven regions of OPSEU play a central role in the day-to-day life of the union.

Perhaps the most important role regions play is in electing Executive Board Members. OPSEU has 21 EBM's (three per region), elected every two years by local delegates to regional meetings. The Executive Board meets every six weeks to guide the union's business. Some two dozen Board sub-committees are responsible for guiding the union in key areas.

EBMs give locals a direct link to the Executive Board, the union's most important decision-making body other than Convention. In addition, many activities of the union, from weekend educationals to province-wide campaigns, are coordinated regionally. Executive Board Members are always available to provide help and advice to locals in their region.

The OPSEU President, First-Vice President/Treasurer, and seven Regional Vice-Presidents make up the Executive Committee (sometimes called "the Officers"), which meets between meetings of the full Executive Board.

Committees, caucuses, and other ways to be involved

OPSEU has been a pioneer in the struggle for workers who face discrimination based on gender, age, race, sexual orientation, disability and other factors unrelated to their work

OPSEU locals, sectors and regions are central to the work of the union, but other elected and volunteer groups play a major part as well. More information on all the groups listed here is readily available on the OPSEU web site.

Equity groups

OPSEU has been a pioneer in the struggle for workers who face discrimination based on gender, age, race, sexual orientation, disability and other factors unrelated to their work. The union is always trying to strengthen its capacity to represent, organize and protect members of all groups – at work, in the union, and in society at large.

Members oversee the union's equity work through three provincial committees and four caucuses.

The work of the Provincial Human Rights Committee, the Provincial Women's Committee, and the Provincial Young Workers Committee is mandated by the OPSEU constitution. Each of these committees has one member elected from each OPSEU region.

The union also funds meetings and activities of the Aboriginal Circle, the Disability Rights Caucus, the Workers of Colour Caucus, and the Rainbow Alliance (which represents lesbian, gay, bisexual, transsexual and transgendered, and queer members).

The activities of the three provincial committees and four caucuses are supported by staff of the OPSEU Equity Unit.

The Francophone caucus

Many OPSEU workplaces operate exclusively in French, and many more function in both English and French. The Francophone caucus is an effective advocate for French speakers in OPSEU.

Solidarity Funds

In a globalized world, OPSEU members have a strong desire to take action on issues beyond the borders of Ontario and Canada. To this end, the union administers two international solidarity funds. The Social Justice Fund sponsors solidarity exchanges and funds development projects in Africa, Asia, the Caribbean, and Latin America. The Live and Let Live Fund provides funding to organizations battling HIV/AIDS in Africa and in Ontario. Both funds are overseen by a Board consisting of the President of OPSEU, three Executive Board Members, and one member from each of the Provincial Human Rights Committee, Provincial Women's Committee, and Provincial Young Workers Committee.

Retired Members' Division

OPSEU's Retired Members' Division is mandated by the constitution to provide a forum for retired members to meet and make recommendations for action to the union. The Division publishes its own newsletter, Autumn View.

In Solidarity* and Informed Newsletters for OPSEU (INFO)

Published four times a year, In Solidarity is the official newsletter for OPSEU stewards and activists, written and designed by elected members. The five-member committee, assisted by an Executive Board Member and assigned staff, also operates Informed Newsletters for OPSEU (INFO) to help OPSEU locals publish their own newsletters. INFO sponsors the Editors' Weekend, a conference held each October to provide communications training to local activists.

OPSEU Enterprises

OPSEU Enterprises sells union-made clothing, travel mugs, pins, pens, keychains and other items for anyone who wants to wave the OPSEU flag at home, at work, or anywhere else. OPSEU Enterprises also offers negotiated discounts to members on cell phone plans, home and auto insurance, travel, and legal services. Visit <http://www.opseu.org/merchandise/merchandise.htm> to find out more.

Getting information fast: OPSEUdirect

OPSEU's internal structures are designed to bring our members together. We believe that the best form of communication is face to face, and we spend a sizeable portion of our overall budget to bring members together at the local, divisional, and regional levels.

That being said, the telephone and the Internet are powerful tools that can give our members the information they need – fast.

OPSEUdirect is a union call centre providing one-stop access to information

About OPSEUdirect

Based on a model pioneered by the Manitoba Government Employees Union, OPSEUdirect is a fast and easy way for OPSEU members to get information on just about any matter related to the union.

OPSEUdirect is a union call centre providing one-stop access to information. OPSEUdirect operators are trained to answer questions on a wide variety of labour topics and emergencies, and know how to contact OPSEU staff to provide expert help when necessary. Our operators also have access to OPSEU databases and collective agreements, and know how to dig up the answers.

Want to know the name of the OPSEU steward in your workplace? Call OPSEUdirect.

Want to know what's happening with your grievance? Call OPSEUdirect.

Got a question of any kind? Call OPSEUdirect.

OPSEUdirect is staffed during regular office hours, Monday to Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Eastern Time. Just call 1-800-268-7376 anywhere in Ontario or (416) 443-8888 in the Greater Toronto area.

OPSEU's web site at www.opseu.org is easy to find, easy to use, and chock full of information. All you need is a computer and a web hook-up. Once you're online, you can connect to over 9,000 pages of information, over 20,000 documents and photos, and an entire database of grievance awards.

The site provides information on current campaigns, OPSEU committees, health and safety, pensions and benefits, wage settlements and the Consumer Price Index, discounts available to OPSEU members, job opportunities, and much, much more. The current OPSEU Constitution, for example, may be downloaded at <http://www.opseu.org/constitution/index.htm>.

Our web site contains information dating back to 1996, but more importantly, it is always up to date. The site is updated five days a week (and sometimes seven!). Site visitors can also subscribe to OPSEU This Week. Published every Friday, OPSEU This Week is an e-mail summary of everything new on the site, with links to new articles.
